Biennale Arte
Austrian Pavilion
2019

Statement by Gernot Blümel, Federal Minister for the EU, Arts, Culture and Media

For more than 120 years, the Venice Biennale has been a leading international cultural organization dedicated to contemporary art and culture from around the world. An exhibition at the Austrian Pavilion in Venice is therefore a central event in any artist's career. The featured artists are given the chance to show their work to more than 500,000 visitors and experts.

Austria's contributions to the Biennale are contributions to a vibrant and creative art scene, both domestically and abroad. The Venice Biennale is not only a magnet for art and culture enthusiasts from around the globe but also provides a prominent platform to project Austria's fantastic artistic and cultural production far beyond our country's borders. The art exhibition in Venice is therefore much more than a periodic demonstration of various nations' cultural excellence. For decades it has contributed in a major way to the current discourse and to the evolution of culture. This diversity of exhibition contributions and national participations in the pavilions of the Giardini is the perfect setting to present an Austrian cultural business card to an international audience. It gives me great pleasure to have Felicitas Thun-Hohenstein curate the Austrian Pavilion of the Biennale Arte 2019.

Felicitas Thun-Hohenstein is an internationally renowned exhibition maker, author, and editor of numerous texts and publications; she has been Professor for Art History at the Institute of Art and Cultural Sciences of the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna for many years, where she also initiated and now heads the Cathrin Pichler Archive. Feminist, gender-specific, and performative subjects are at the forefront of her work.

With Renate Bertlmann, the curator has selected an artist for the Austrian Pavilion in 2019 whose work not only holds a significant place in the history of Austrian performance art but is also widely acclaimed in the international feminist avant-garde. The artist, who was born in Vienna in 1943, received the Grant Austrian State Prize in 2017. I am all the more pleased that the upcoming presentation at the Austrian Pavilion will feature a female artist as its sole position—a first in its decades-long history. Austria's contribution in 2019 is yet another starting point for a lively international discussion, which will surely emphasize the global presence and significance of Austrian arts and culture.

Introduction by the Curator of the Austrian Contribution Felicitas Thun-Hohenstein

Representation requires radicalization and comes from coercion.
Ingeborg Bachmann¹

Since its foundation in 1895—and, therefore, as the oldest international art exhibition—the Venice Biennale has served as a model for all big contemporary exhibitions. Its history is also a cultural-political narrative of the European twentieth and global twenty-first centuries. Above all it is a history of exhibitions and their spectacular provocations that has consistently seen art as a challenge. Even a cursory look back at the artists previously presented at the Austrian Pavilion, which was built by Josef Hoffmann and Robert Kramreiter and has been Austria's national pavilion since 1934, shows the diversity and heterogeneity of art's expressions and positions.

2019 will mark the first time in the history of Austria's participation in the Venice Biennale that a female artist, namely Renate Bertlmann, will put on a solo presentation at the Pavilion. With this, we are setting an example as a society; an example that is in accordance with the idea of art and examines structural imbalances.

In Renate Bertlmann, I have chosen an artist whose methods in terms of both concepts and aesthetics will continue a Venetian art history of provocation in the best sense of the word.

In Austria, Renate Bertlmann has long been regarded as a leading feminist artist and a pioneer of performance art. In recognition of her groundbreaking work, she was awarded the Grand Austrian State Prize in 2017. Her works were presented at large events, such as the Gwangju Biennale, as well as in seminal exhibitions, such as The World Goes Pop at Tate Modern, London (2014), Self-Timer Stories at the Austrian Cultural Forum New York (2014), Renate Bertlmann - Maria Lassnig at Sotheby's Gallery, London (2017), and Sex Work: Feminist Art & Radical Politics, Richard Saltoun Gallery, Frieze Art Fair, London (2017).

Bertlmann can look back at a complex oeuvre that is both aesthetically and conceptually intricately connected to an aesthetics of risk. Always keeping a keen eye on the transformational potential of difference as a counterweight to power, the artist oscillates performative, sculptural, graphic, photographic, filmic, and textual aspects between the past and the present, between dispossession and covetousness, between the everyday and the unusual, between art and life. Renate Bertlmann not only distinguishes herself through her extraordinary formal and conceptual precision, the agitative programmatic character of her work under the artistic motto "Amo Ergo Sum" and her obsessive exploration of body images directly address the sociopolitics of popular culture. Already at the beginning of her artistic career, Renate Bertlmann knew to question institutional conditions and concepts of art both critically and enthusiastically by using the individuality of materials as a jumping-off point for her analytical feminist reflections and laying bare the mechanisms of the art system. It is all the more formidable, then, how she manages to sensuously and impressively negotiate these questions in a synthetic act using performative and traditional forms of expressions.

For her exhibition at the Austrian Pavilion, Renate Bertlmann will present selected works as well as a piece commissioned specifically for the Biennale.

"I am happy about my wonderful task to design the Austrian Pavilion in Venice. Radical contents and aesthetics and a willingness to take risks are the main pillars of my artistic work. My visions, which have carried me for fifty years, will therefore also find an authentic expression in this place."

Biographies

Renate Bertlmann

Renate Bertlmann (*1943 in Vienna) studied at the Academy of Arts in Oxford in 1962/63 and subsequently at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna until 1970. After graduating in Painting and Restoration, she was a lecturer at the Department of Conservation and Technology at the Academy until 1982. She lives and works in Vienna.

In her work Bertlmann explores representations of roles and bodies, questioning gender relationships by discussing subjects like pornography, sexuality, violence, Eros, and hierarchy. Her works are particularly characterized by a provocative, ironic approach.

She has been a member of the Vienna Secession since 1993 and a co-editor of the magazine [sic!] - Forum für feministische Gangarten since 1994. In 2007, she received the Prize of the City of Vienna and in 2017, the Grand Austrian State Prize.

Renate Bertlmann is represented by Galerie Steinek / www.galerie.steineck.at and Richard Saltoun Gallery / www.richardsaltoun.com

Biennale Lectures

The Biennale Lectures will be held in cooperation with the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna in the runup to the Austrian contribution to the Biennale Arte 2019. The series, cocurated by Felicitas Thun-Hohenstein and Andreas Spiegl, aims to make the Biennale itself the subject of discussion as both a significant and controversial institution. It will feature talks by academics and artists.

The series kicks in autumn with a conversation with Ralph Rugoff, the Artistic Director of the Biennale Arte 2019, at Atelierhaus der Akademie der bildenden Künste (Lehargasse 6-8, 1060 Wien).

The Austrian contribution to the Biennale Arte implicitly combines three art- and cultural-political issues. Each of them will be the subject of a Biennale Lecture.

Details about dates and venues will be updated regularly at www.biennalearte.at

Biennale Arte

1) Art and the Artificial Boundaries of National Concepts of Culture

The exhibition pavilions of individual nations convey both the international positioning of the Biennale and the segmentation into national representations of art. The current return of nationalistic cultural policies once again calls attention to the history of the kinds of national differentiation that have become historically manifest in the Biennale's installment of national pavilions. How and where are the lines drawn between contemporary concepts of art and the ideas of national cultures? What distinguishes universalist or cosmopolitan perspectives from "inter-national" ones or democratic concepts of culture from the construction of national cultures?

2) Aesthetics of Risk

The history of feminist art is inextricably linked with an aesthetics of risk. The critique of prevailing role ideals has been and still is a practice of challenging and breaking with the role of normative social ideas. What distinguishes feminist art and criticism is a persevering readiness to approach the means and goals of the respective critique itself in a critical manner and thus to risk running counter to the normative tendencies within one's own concepts. How are sociopolitical objection and the risk of contradiction related to the divergences and differences that are connected to the history of feminist art and critique?

Politics of the Temporary

The rhythm of the Biennales and the exhibitions' limited duration are directly related to a politics of the temporary. However, the exhibitions' questions and themes inevitably go beyond the time limits of the (temporary) presentation. What boundaries delineate the periods of exhibitions in relation to the concepts of time that are expressed in the artistic works and practices? How heterogeneous and heterochronic are their temporalities?
